January 31st 2019: Saving the Ocean in Concert with Industries and Corporations

Paul Holthus talks about saving the ocean by bringing industries and corporations together to form the World Ocean Council. Paul will tell us about some of the international ocean conservation issues the Council is working on, including adaptations for climate change, port waste facilities, plastic pollution, biodiversity in international waters, mineral mining, environmental impact statements in vast ocean areas, marine spatial planning, and responsible management of the Arctic's Northwest Passage. That diverse corporations can work in concert together is remarkable and how Paul helped to b
