July 1st 2019: What Nurses Need to know about
Domestic Abuse/Suicide

It is hard to be alive in the USA today & not know someone in the grasp of Domestic Abuse, Mental Health Crises, and/or suicide attempts. Nursing Suicide has risen to terrifying levels. What do Nurses need to know to recognize the signs/symptoms to address these issues at their earliest point? My guests bring an interesting, complementary story & information regarding these issues. Sherry Genga is the author of The Shattered Oak, a true story of her mother's nightmare of abuse, suicide attempts and misdiagnosis of Mental Illness, along with her own growth & learning from the experience. Dr. Al

The Shattered Oak Sherry Genga
A once vibrant oak tree in her yard began dying, whispering cries for help as its leaves died and moss covered its sagging, breaking branches. Inside the house, Barbara too was in crisis, the recipient of her husband's anger and rage. As time passes, Barbara can no longer stay strong. While she deals with her own demons, the oak weakens.
