August 5th 2019: Challenging the Conflicts of Diverse Nurses' Experiences

This show touches close to my passion for making Nursing the greatest profession of all. In every one of over 100 shows I have hoped to encourage, yet challenge each nurse to strive for their best. In my professional experience, it has only been the past 20 years that I have encountered day-to-day interactions with nurses of color, because each location was primarily white. As I have journeyed through life, read books illuminating the reality & learning from my friends of color, I have been forced to address my own white privilege. In doing that, realizing how different my perceptions of the

Featured Guests

Benjamin Mchie, Founder & Director | African American Directory

Benjamin Mchie is founder of African American Registry and a Multi Media Professional for over 38 years. Mchie has been featured on the BBC, TV Asahi and HBO VICE News. As creator of the Teacher's Forum, his influence ranges from E-12 classrooms to Post-Secondary schools. He sees a shift in young people striving to link scholarship, activism and civic engagement. He has been a panelist at National and Global conferences on race education. Mchie's work teaches African American heritage by blending its history and rich culture. The Registry's personal narratives exhibit people, episodes and locations to preserve African America's stories for teaching and learning. He embraces a nursing schola

Tammy Sinkfield, DNP, MAN, RN PHN, CRRN

Dr. Sinkfield has had unique opportunities to see and understand needs of patients of color, in interaction with nursing practices in local organizations. Racial disparities are prevalent within healthcare. There is often lack of understanding within cross-cultural interactions. She became inspired to promote a better understanding of these complex interactions between nurses and the patients for whom they care, to effect greater trust in that relationship. Her experiences as a professional nurse embedded in racism led her to study transcultural relationships in nursing. Nurses in their patient care engagement, come face to face with boundaries that are shadowed with implicit biases and histo
