Bill Bloom

Bill is a husband, father, and a writer in progress. He's published two books and is working on the third, releasing soon. The book is going to teach people how to unlearn their bad money habits and create new ones Talking about retirement income is his favorite topic. He is a Retirement Income Certified Professional, RICP. Retire As You Desire is his motto. He helps individuals, couples and business owners create lifetime income streams from their investments. He is different from other financial advisors because he teaches clients how to spend their money in retirement by creating custom investment income streams that suit their needs for the rest of their lives. The client is always the m

Dr. Julee Hafner

Julee Hafner Ph. D., became curious about how leaders can successfully change and update their skills. She has been researching this idea of unlearning, brain updating, and continues to find it fascinating. Everyone must be adept in doing things differently. Now with uncertainty in our world, fear of change is increasing dramatically. Competently navigating through the perilous journey of personal change, can be difficult. Dr. Julee helps others developing the ability to remove non-productive skills that limit us. She knows communication leadership as a coach helping people to be better speakers – her motto is everything begins with good communication! Host of What to Say, podcast, the autho
