August 4th 2020: Space, the next generation

We have chatted how different 2020 would be on space exploration. But now 8 months later, we have begun to secure our next generation of space exploration targets. For me it is exciting and challenging as the US begun to launch astronauts back into space since 2011. Just as important are the planned space activities for the United States; or even the other nations of the world? How will the US and world space communities continue to respond to 2020 space challenges and beyond? Join me and my guest Mr. Bruce "Hawk" Abbott, at Today, Tomorrow's Technology (T3) as we discuss the first ste
