As the summer winds down, its time to go back to school. This month, we will examine America's school system. In recent years, COVID-19, school shootings, affirmation of LGBTQ students, institutional racism, critical race theory, teacher burnout and parent's rights, have transformed America's schools into cultural battlegrounds. In result, students, teachers and administrators are experiencing poor mental health outcomes, secondary traumatic stress and burnout. In order to determine how our nation's schools have gotten to this point, our co-hosts will interview school professionals and engage
