Young Adults Dealing With Loss

Rex and Nancy Gleim, retired educators, explore the needs of an often underserved population, teens and young adults who have completed high school and are grieving the deaths of friends and loved ones. In 1992 Rex and Nancy's son Ryan died in an auto accident. After his death they founded two local chapters of The Compassionate Friends in Indiana and in 1992, in response to their communities need, they founded Ryan's Place a grief center for families.
