March 5th 2010: "Part II: Is the Environment to Blame for Autism?"

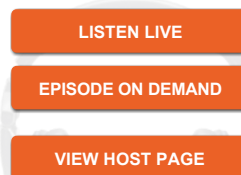

Good parents advocate for their children, and try to keep them safe from harm. Suppose your children were being harmed by the air they breathe, by chemicals sprayed on their schoolyard, or by vaccinations recommended by your most trusted ally in keeping your child healthy – your pediatrician. If that were the case, you'd likely do all that you could to protect your child, but you'd soon find that as a lone parent it is very difficult to sway the large organizations and companies that control the environmental hazards around your child. And then...you'd do what this week's Go Green Radio guests d
