November 16th 2010: Collaborating Across Treatment Disciplines: the Holland Center approach with Troy Fry, MA, BCBA and Michael Montico, MD

As professionals treating ASD children utilizing both behavioral and biomedical approaches, Dr. Michael Montico and Troy Fry have come to appreciate the reciprocal sharing of information that evolves from a treatment model like the one at Holland Center and Clinic. Even the finest behavioral or biomedical treatment operating in isolation will most likely be less effective and produce fewer positive outcomes than an integrated approach incorporating best practices from each of the treatment disciplines.
