January 31st 2012: Understanding our FASD Kids

Jeff Noble, who has ADHD, is advocate, trainer and coach for caregivers involved with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorder (FASD). He has ADHD. He says how he became a foster parent of a young man with FASD, and how this changed his life. He explains his slogan 'FASD is forever, frustration is not'. He describes the things he's learned about FASD kids, foster-parenting for them, and the needs of families caring for them. He talks about the challenges that FASD creates for foster parents, and discusses the types of help with these challenges that foster parents need. He gives advice to foster parent
