August 9th 2012: Von Braschler: Mystic Voyages of the Energy Body

Nature teaches us how the past becomes the future. We can see that trees do not die in autumn. Instead, they begin a regeneration process. In the winter, when much of the physical world is frozen, we commonly think of death. But the life force in nature endures and recycles. The next spring looks like the spring of last year. We, too, are essentially a life force—a light body encased in a gross, material body. We reside there but we are not destined to remain entombed in our physical structures forever.
