As the old saying goes, "Rome wasn't built in a day" and neither are championships. So gone are the days where all one needed in order to make a contract binding, was a firm handshake. Professional organizations throughout the years have manipulated the rules to favor themselves, while asking players to think of the team first. In today's sports scene, the word loyalty is best suited for those who lace up and lay it on the line everyday, exercising their right to dominant as they see fit. Professional athletes are realizing more than ever, they can shape the landscape of how their sport i
