The buzz: UXOne iPhone puts more computing power in the palm of your hand than all of MIT had a few decades ago. Augmenting this enormous power with near-constant connectivity and expanding it to wearables and other innovations, the mobile revolution has radically redefined our relationship with technology. What's out? Monolithic apps, heavyweight program suites, perfection and comprehensiveness. What's in? Lightweight purpose-built apps, speed and availability. The experts speak. Scott Bonnell, Mocana: "Nielsen claims that the average smartphone owner has more than 27 apps on their pho
