January 10th 2017: The Crisis of Anxiety and Love

Today, we have more young adults and teenagers than ever diagnosed with psychiatric disorders including drug addiction and anxiety. Where does this epidemic spring from and what can we do about it? Dr. Wayne Johnson is a family practitioner specializing in helping young people to avoid the crises of love and anxiety facing today's youth. Comparing anxiety with demonic possession, Dr. Johnson argues that in a world where wants have replaced needs, more and more of us are overwhelmed by the sheer number of choices which leads to physical, emotional and spiritual fatigue and burnout. As usual,
