March 3rd 2017: Collaborative Operating System

Collaboration and collaborative leadership are hot topics in the business press today. However, practical realities today also expect leaders to control risk, meet targets and manage the performance of the team. Most of us have a deeply ingrained view that our role as leaders and managers is to be in control of the team we lead, make decisions and drive the team to success. This view leads to a hierarchical perspective of leadership instead of a collaborative one. There is another way and it's called the Collaborative Operating System. Are you ready to break out of your hierarchical m
