Sex Out Loud with Tristan Taormino Friday at 5 PM Pacific

July 21st 2017: Kelli Dunham on Laughter, Grief, Caregiving, Health, Bodies and Why Jesus Was No Sissy

Writer & comic Kelli Dunham is really serious about making people laugh about grief, caregiving, health, bodies and healthcare which makes her awesome to experience on stage or invite to your college, but find out why she can be a little bit much for dinner parties sometimes. Her latest show Jesus Was No Sissy is a comic storytelling performance about how Good Christian Girls Who Might Be Boys Inside learn about masculinity and femininity through the wonders of The Lord's Boot Camp (motto: Get Dirty for God, Go Lay a Brick), Christian finishing school ("From Grubby to Grace" for girls and "God

Kelli Dunham

Kelli Dunham is the ex-nun genderqueer nurse storytelling nerd comic so common in modern Brooklyn. Kelli has appeared on Showtime, the Discovery Channel and at colleges, prides, and the occasional livestock auction. She is the author of seven books of humorous mostly health related nonfiction, including the 2013 Freak of Nurture (Topside Press), a collection of horrifying/funny tales of grief, caregiving and exploding knee replacements. Kelli was nominated to be a 2105 White House Champion of Change for her work as the co-founder and producer of Queer Memoir, NYC's longest-running most earnest LGBT storytelling event. She is the founder and producer of Organ Recital: A Festival of Stories
