October 30th 2017: Encore: Meet Your Baby's Needs with Primal Caregiving

For years, parents of a crying baby were often told to let them "cry it out" and warned that responding to "every" cry would have only one result: "You'll spoil that baby!" Our evolving understanding of early child development – particularly brain development in infancy and toddlerhood – highlights the problem with such thinking: Babies need and expect primal caregiving, with loving and responsive positive caregiving at its heart. Join Marie as she talks with Darcia Narvaez, PhD about why primal caregiving is important, and how you can make sure your baby's needs are met. Questions? Marie is a
