Innovative Leaders Driving Thriving Organizations

Tuesday at 11 AM Pacific
February 20th 2018: Inner Peace Nurtures Global Impact

This interview is part of the 2017 International Leadership Association Conference Interview series in Brussels Belgium. Kathryn talks about what leaders need in order to be transformational in turbulent times. She will discuss two key areas of focus: [1] how leaders can nourish themselves so that their very being is transformational—enlivens those with whom they connect; [2] how they create healthy organizations for a healthy world She explores concrete examples of what this means and also offers practical take-away practices leaders can apply in their daily lives.

Featured Guest

Kathryn Goldman Schuyler, PhD

Kathryn is an experienced organizational consultant, leadership coach, and public speaker. Using her years of consulting experience in change and development with executives and their teams, combined with her personal exploration of mindfulness, awareness, and somatic learning, she is a great contact for creative leadership retreats. Author of INNER PEACE—GLOBAL IMPACT, Kathryn draws on her lifetime certification in the FELDENKRAIS METHOD, her professional experience as a clinical sociologist, her work on Anat Baniel's training team, and years of study with Jean Houston. She brings a sense of humor and caring to all she does and aims to support you in doing the same!
