February 9th 2018: The Ghosts of Government in Our Machines: The CIA and Surveillance

Hacking from Russia, China and other nation states has been going on for a very long time. And, it will continue to be in the news as more types of tech creates more ways to hack, and as more data is created to give insights into personal lives and activities. It is important to consider the history of nation state hacking, how it has evolved over the years, and what is currently occurring. Christopher will describe his experiences in the CIA, how he's seen hacking methods change since he first started working in this area, current and future threats, and what everyone needs to keep in mind wh
