October 5th 2019: White hat hacking & security break-in testing & ethics

A recent incident occurred in central Iowa where security vendor, Coalfire, employees were arrested for breaking/entering and robbery of a county government building. After the arrest it was determined this was part of a contract the vendor had with a Federal agency in a neighboring county. This incident brought a wide range of online discussions about white hat hacking, facility break-in tests, and associated responsibilities and related ethical considerations. • What are some lessons from the Coalfire security vendor arrests? • What are some recommendations for contracting an outside ent
