Friday at 8 AM Pacific
January 31st 2020: Bound & Bonded

This is the story of both bondage and bonding -- a sexual lifestyle and an enduring mother/daughter bond, as well as a tender end of life saga. In her memoir, Bound, Elizabeth Anne Wood tours her emotional landscape, that of a young woman who has learned that her mother has become, late in life, a Domme, a sexual dominatrix: "It hasn't been an imposition or an embarrassment when she's shared her Domme adventures. It's been a celebration," Wood notes, (Bound, 2019, p. 32, She Writes Press.) Early on, the author set boundaries and became herself through her own search for identity. Her mother

Featured Guest

Elizabeth Anne Wood

Elizabeth Anne Wood is uniquely qualified intellectually to write the book Bound, earning her Ph.D. at Brandeis University in 1999 for a study of gender, power, and social interaction in strip clubs. She has written critically about sexuality and society ever since. Dr. Wood is a SUNY Chancellor's Award-winning professor of sociology at Nassau Community College in Garden City, NY. Growing up in suburban Philadelphia, she now divides her time between New York City and Boston.
