WHERE TEENS TALK AND THE WORLD LISTENS

Express Yourself!
Sunday at 3 PM Pacific
August 9th 2020: Power of Community: RISE

The Merriam-Webster Dictionary defines the word "rise" more than 20 different ways, both as a verb and a noun. Hosts Andrea Smith and Siri Phaneendra interview 16-year-old singer-songwriter-musician, Isolde Fair with her poignant new song nominated for Hollywood Music in Media Award, "Rise." A collaboration between Isolde and her multi-talented parents: her mother, the esteemed pianist and composer Starr Parodi, who co-wrote "Rise" with Isolde; and Jeff Eden Fair, Isolde's father, who co-produced it with Starr. Andrea and Siri read The Gift of Community from Cynthia Brian's award winning book,

Featured Guest

Isolde Fair

Isolde Fair first gained recognition at age 13 with her composition and recording "To All The Little Girls." The lyrics focused on a portion of Hillary Clinton's 2016 concession speech dedicated to young women: "Never doubt that you are valuable..." The song reached Clinton herself, who wrote online of her appreciation of the sentiments expressed by Isolde. Subsequently, Isolde was courted by numerous media outlets eager to know how such a young girl created such a profound piece of art. "Rise" focuses on using one's voice for positive change, and the power that each person possesses to allow our voices to be heard against injustice—the unstoppable drive to never give up. It's a message for p
