In December 20219, the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA) in the UK published a paper that "...Firms identify their important business services and apply resilience impact tolerances." This has can have a significant impact upon an organization's supply chain and ensuring compliance with the FCA directive. I speak with Sarah Garrington who will outline the compliance requirements contained within the FCA publication and what organizations can do to address it. Sarah outlines high-level considerations and steps corporate leaders must consider when planning to respond to the FCA requirement an
