April 30th 2021: When the Red Gates Opened: Dori Jones Yang's Memoir about China

Tune in
Friday at 8 AM Pacific Time on
VoiceAmerica Variety Channel

Dori was among the first American correspondents to cover China's transformation from Maoism to modernization. Her deeply personal memoir follows her rise from rookie reporter to experienced journalist. She reveals details of her cross-cultural romance and marriage, which gave her deeper insights into how China's reforms led to hopes for better lives among ordinary people. This euphoria reached its peak in 1989, when peaceful protesters filled Tiananmen Square, demanding democracy. On the ground in Beijing, Dori lived that hope, as well as the despair that followed. After Tiananmen, she retu
