July 14th 2005: Surviving the Death of a Child by Homicide

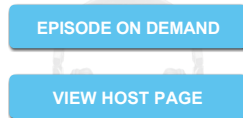

There is nothing that engenders more anger than having a loved one murdered. Our guest on this show is Dr. Richard Dew a family practitioner from Knoxville Tennessee. In July of 1992 his son Brad was murdered. Dr. Dew has authored several books "Brad. We Hardly Knew You" and "Rachel's Cry." Dr. Dew will share his experience with the criminal justice system including the fact that the system cannot deal with the anger and grief of the family. He will tell us how he and his family survived the system and give messages of hope, forgiveness, and healing. He will point out the pitfall
