Hosea Williams was a civil rights pioneer. He marched with Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and fought his entire life for human rights. Before he died, he founded Hosea Feed The Hungry, a non-profit headquartered in Atlanta, GA that feeds thousands of homeless individuals and families during the holiday season. The legacy of Hosea Williams lives on through his daughter, Film Actress Elisabeth Omilami, who now heads the organization with her husband, serving over 60,000 meals each holiday.
