November 26th 2008: Memories: Fact or Fiction

Join Ariel and Shya Kane in this intriguing episode as they investigate memories. A common misconception is that our memories accurately represent past events. But in fact they are simply recordings of those events made from a point of view of the person we were at that time. If we hold our memories as the truth, let them define us, and allow them to filter the way we experience reality, we will surely be misguided. Listen in as The Kanes and callers from their live audience discuss Memories: Fact or Fiction.
