October 05th 2011: River Herring and the Mystic River, Over Dams by Bucket, Death by Bycatch

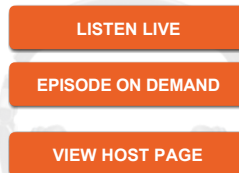

E. K. Khalsa, Executive Director of the Mystic River Watershed Association (mysticriver.org) talks about the challenges of being a river hearing in the sea and in the river. He spoke on behalf of herring to the New England Fisheries Management Council and offers concrete actions one can take to save herring. The Fisheries Council is offering a short public comment period after years of research and deliberations. The Mystic River is alive with herring thanks to people turning out to lift fish over a dam and then the building of a successful fish ladder. Hardened shorelines and impervious w
