June 05th 2012: Keeping memories, restoring memories

Arthur Kupperman has been an entrepreneur for more than 30 years, after deciding to leave the field of public accounting. His website, My Senior Portal, and his family experience led his interest in keeping and restoring his own family's memories. He explains what memories mean for him and his family. He says why keeping memories matters in families, and describes how family memories become part of the family's heritage. He explains the value of keeping family memories for seniors whose memories may be starting to fail. He explores the universal appeal of storing memories and warns about the
