August 07th 2012: Special Encore Presentation: Planning For Special Education and Autism Care

In this episode of Autism Spectrum Radio, Dr. Frea explores the challenges associated with planning for the education and care of an individual with an autism spectrum disorder. The day to day challenges of caring for someone with autism can be all consuming. Sometimes it's hard to catch a breath and think about tomorrow let alone the distant future of long term education and care. However, the questions surrounding the long term therapy and support of an individual with an ASD are in many ways as important as their short term needs. In addition to answering your questions and concerns abo
