August 16th 2012: Food for the Soul with Tim Corcoran

Did you have a special place in nature as a child, maybe a favorite tree, or a spot in your backyard where you played? On today's show, Tim Corcoran, author of Growing Up with a Soul Full of Nature and Director of the Headwaters Outdoor School at Mt. Shasta, will share stories of his adventurous life and give us ways we can protect and save Mother Earth. Tim will talk about his own childhood and how the darker times were a catalyst that made him a fierce defender of nature. He will explain what it means to have a code of honor, why having mentors is important, how nature can help us find our t

Tim Corcoran

Tim Corcoran went into the woods at age six, and knew it was his home. At seventeen he spent four months alone in the Canadian Wilderness, and began teaching wildlife conservation in 1974. He's worked at the Alberta Game Farm in Alberta, Canada, at the Crandon Park Zoo in Florida, at Marine World Africa U.S. A.; he co-founded Native Animal Rescue in Santa Cruz, California, and in the 1980's founded a wilderness school also in Santa Cruz, called Pathfinders where he led survival and vision quest trips. In 1992 he created Headwaters Outdoor School in Mount Shasta, California, to realize his lifelong vision of sharing what he's learned from nature and to inspire people to discover their own con
