August 28th 2012: Answering Your Questions About Teens With Autism

This week on Autism Spectrum Radio we turn our focus to teens with autism and answer your questions live on the air about the topic. Teen years can be challenging for anyone. For teens with autism, the challenges become more complex. Still, this time has the potential for great rewards and success. The programs and therapies that are implemented for our teens will have a big impact in ensuring they achieve their full potential through-out their lives. This week your host, Rob Haupt is very excited to change up our show's format. During the broadcast, we will be taking your calls live on air
