September 20th 2012: The Citizen Father Project: Changing the Culture of Fathering

Now, more than ever in modern times, the importance of healthy and engaged fathers is paramount. How our children are raised and cared for will have a direct impact on the health of our society in the future. Imagine dedicated fathers working together to support, educate and develop healthy, active fathers and to rebuild family and community values. That is the mission of The Citizen Father Project. William J. Doherty, PhD is Professor of Family Social Science and Director of Citizen Professional Center at the Univ. of Minnesota. The Citizen Father Project is an extension of the Father P

William J. Doherty, Ph.D. is Professor in the Department of Family Social Science and Director of the Citizen Professional Center at the University of Minnesota. He leads the Citizen Health Care and Families and Democracy Project, which aims to develop the theory and practice of democratic public work by health and human services professionals. He has developed a model of grass roots organizing among parents and other citizens around cultural and community issues of importance to families. These projects range from the cultural discontents of middle class families (overscheduling, out-of-control birthday parties) to challenges of urban single fathers, from health care problems among Ameri
