October 15th 2012: The First Collaborative
International Resource Directory for Dementia, Minneapolis

Lori La Bey is the founder of the First Collaborative International Resource Directory for Dementia, in Minneapolis. She describes her professional career and experience of family caregiving. She discusses family caregivers' needs in caring for family members living with dementia such as Alzheimer's disease, and explains what motivated her to create the Directory. She describes the services it provides, who it is intended to serve and where, and which of her other services it works with. She talks about the people who are involved in creating it, how it operates and whether she is looking for
