November 01st 2012: Competition, Camaraderie and Culture of Youth Sports

Sports are such an integral part of our culture in the United States, that we often use sports terms in business, at home, school, or at play. Other than physical activity and physical fitness, are there benefits or lessons our children learn from participating in sports? Can the competition to win cause unnecessary stress in child's life? What does "Winning" really mean, and how far should one be willing to go to be "The Winner?" How involved should parents be in their child's sports activities? These are a few of the issues I'll be discussing with my guest, Wayne Stofsky, this week. Wayne i
