April 23rd 2013: Joy of Self-Acceptance

We have been bombarded with everyone else's truths; from our parents to teachers to society in general. There may even be times when we losetrack of what our own truth represents and even what it really is. This becomes apparent when we accomplish what we think we want in our life only to find ourselves unfulfilled or unhappy; especially when our truth is not considered mainstream. When we truly accept ourselves and others for their brand of uniqueness, even if it is the opposite our own beliefs and truth, we no longer put effort out to change others. This is turn eradicates the energy of othe
