April 22nd 2013: Make Room for the New You

Your physical space is a reflection of your mind and your spirit. And as we prepare for this new season, we must be intentional about getting rid of the old. We can't go through life accumulating more and more and never being mindful to take out the trash; both literally and metaphorically. So join Melissa Brown for another show that is sure to inspire you to clear the clutter, organize your space, and throw some things away. If you are ready for a new life, then take the next step and make some room. Let's do some spring cleaning.
