January 24th 2013: Giving $1000 a Day

Ari Nessel believes in helping make things better and he is doing just that through The Pollination Project. The Pollination Project believes in the power of ordinary people to do extraordinary things. They make grants to individual change-makers with an idea and a plan to make their community and their world a better place. Their goal is to give $1,000 seed grants to individual change makers, 365 days a year. Issues they fund include: compassion towards all life (people, planet, animals); environmental sustainability; justice in all of its forms; community health and wellness; putting conscio

Featured Guest

Ari Nessel

Ari Nessel gives away a thousand dollars a day, every day, to individual change-makers and activists who are working to make the world—or just their own community—a better, more peaceful and more sustainable place. He is the founder and president of a new organization, The Pollination Project, which awards $1000 grants as seed money to passionate individuals working for the benefit of people, planet, animals in areas like environmental sustainability, social justice, community health and wellness. He lives in Dallas with his wife, a doctor, who cares for underserved populations, their two young sons and a dog. He also teaches meditation and yoga workshops and is an activist for peace, nonvi
