June 25th 2013: The Warrior Mentality: Learning to Master a Crisis Situation

Did you ever wonder what it takes to be a warrior? How to keep a cool head in life or death situations? Join us as Joe Teti, former Marine, Green Beret and co-host of The Discovery Channel's show Dual Survival, walks us through a mission as a way to explain the mental and physical preparation it takes to face the worst and come out on top. Learn how to keep your mind right in a crisis, develop situational awareness, set and achieve objectives and, most importantly, how to maintain the survivor's mindset in any circumstance. This is a truly unique opportunity to get inside the mind of a war

Featured Guest

Joseph Teti

Joseph Teti is a former Force Recon Marine, Army Special Forces Green Beret, a former operator in counter-terrorist units and a combat veteran of both Iraq and Afghanistan. He planned and conducted a broad range of special operations missions covering the entire operational continuum. These missions gave the President an option when overt military and / or diplomatic actions were not viable or politically feasible. Operations of this nature required rapid response with surgical application of a wide variety of unique skills, while maintaining the lowest possible profile of U.S. involvement. Joseph has performed high-risk Personal Security Detail operations in Afghanistan and Iraq for U.S.
