December 20th 2013: New York State Petroleum Council Speaks Out on Fracking

Are there upsides to fracking? Are consumer fears warranted? What are oil and gas companies doing to manage the risks involved? At the top of the hour, we'll explore this topic with Karen Moreau, Executive Director of the New York State Petroleum Council, who will discuss hydraulic fracturing from an industry perspective. Later in the episode, we'll be joined by Richard Heinberg, author of Snake Oil: How Fracking's False Promise of Plenty Imperils Our Future.

Karen Bulich Moreau

Karen Bulich Moreau is the President, CEO and co-founder of the Foundation for Land and Liberty. Karen grew up on a mushroom farm on the Hudson River in Catskill, New York, the granddaughter of a Croatian immigrant who shoveled coal to fire the cement kilns by night and farmed by day on rented cement company land. In 1943 John and Johanna Bulich purchased a farm on the river, and began clearing the land with their family and growing mushrooms in one of the large barns. Today, Bulich Mushroom Company is the last commercial mushroom farm in NYS in a valley where there were over 40 mushroom growers and once thriving cement plants. The three main employers of hundreds during Karen's childhood.
