March 04th 2014: Is Your 401K OK?

On July 16, 2012, the rules governing every 401(k) and every private pension plan in the United States changed. The primary service providers to these plans – trustees, advisors, investment managers, record keepers and other fiduciaries – must provide new fee disclosures to their plan clients, or else their contracts will no longer be “reasonable” arrangements exempted from ERISA’s prohibited transaction rules. Moreover, the government is watching. Listen to today’s program to learn about how you can protect yourself and your company from an audit and further learn from our guest John Starr

Featured Guest

John A. Starr

John A. Starr, President of My Benefits LLC and First Party Administrator, LLC has been a retirement plan professional for over 26 years. His background and experience has provided his clients with a comprehensive understanding of retirement plan markets, plan design, and plan advice. After starting his career with Ernst & Young, John attended the University of Dayton School of Law and later attended the University of Florida’s Master of Law and Taxation program. He practiced for over 8 years in a large law firm’s ERISA practice group, with particular emphasis on shareholder driven retirement plans, ESOPs and 401(k) plans. He then became Wachovia Bank’s Employee Benefit Group C.O.O. for Vir
