October 14th 2014: A Man as a Family Caregiver for an All-Male Family

Yo Mustafa is an actor, a director and a teacher of theatre. He's been in a same-sex marriage for 25 years. He talks about his life and career. He describes his partner's life, career and the serious illness he developed. He explains the challenges that have arisen for his partner, his family caregiving, and his all-male family as a whole. He describes the supports they variously needed and still need. He says what more he would like to do to improve support for self-employed professionals like him and his partner when one of them develops a serious illness that prevents the one from working.
