August 05th 2015: Beyond the Pink Moon

Nicki Durler's family faced staggering losses as a result of the BRCA1 gene, which made its members vulnerable to diagnoses of breast and ovarian cancer. Then Nicki herself was diagnosed and treated for breast cancer. Her memoir, Beyond the Pink Moon, shares her family's experience and her own road to health and a new calling in her life; to advocate for other women facing the possibility or reality of breast and ovarian cancer. Her advocacy has resulted in a large international Facebook group for women facing breast and ovarian cancer diagnoses, a second book of writing by those women, an

Nicki Boscia Durler

Nicki Boscia Durler is a breast cancer survivor and patient advocate. Following her diagnosis in 2009 she penned her memoir Beyond the Pink Moon. As a carrier of a BRCA2 mutation, inherited from her mother, she told the story of her family's staggering history of hereditary breast and ovarian cancer. Her Facebook group, by the same name, has close to 4,000 members in 30 countries. Founded in 2010 and moderated by Nicki, it is an active forum for discussion for survivors, previvors, caregivers, MDs and health care professionals. Nicki's second book, The Pink Moon Lovelies, Empowering Stories of Survival, is an anthology of 50 stories from breast and ovarian cancer survivors and BRCA pre
