Wednesday at 7 AM Pacific
October 21st 2015: LGBT Equality and 100 Deadly Skills

Kathryn interviews Philadelphia Gay News Founder Mark Segal, author of "And Then I Danced: Traveling the Road to LGBT Equality". On December 11, 1973 Segal disrupted the live broadcast of the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite by sitting on Cronkite's desk yelling, "Gays protest CBS prejudice!" directly into the camera. This was watched live by 60% of American households, presenting many with their first concept of gay rights. 40 years later, Segal and his fiancé danced together at the White House to the Marine Corps band. Kathryn also interviews retired Navy SEAL Clint Emerson, a

Featured Guests

Mark Segal

Mark Segal has established a reputation as the dean of American gay journalism over the past five decades. From the Stonewall demonstrations in 1969 to founding the Philadelphia Gay News in 1975, along with his more recent forays into TV and politics, his proven commitment as a tireless LGBT advocate has made him a force to be reckoned with. Respected by his peers for pioneering the idea of local LGBT newspapers, he is one of the founders and former president of both the National Gay Press Association and the National Gay Newspaper Guild. Segal was recently inducted into the National Lesbian & Gay Journalist Association's Hall of Fame and was appointed a member of the Comcast/NBCUniversal Jo
