PI's Declassified! Thursday at 9 AM Pacific November 12th 2015: Skipt racing From Europe

French private investigator and former police officer from the United Kingdom, Graham Dooley, has had considerable success in locating people all over the world with the barest of information. How are people traced outside the United States? What are the obstacles and what are the challenges he faces in locating an individual's whereabouts or his or her assets? Is one country more difficult than another? How are the differences in culture and language addressed? Tune in to hear Graham Dooley discuss his work and how he operates from his offices in both France and the United Kingdom?
