Many startups never get past just that... Start ups. As an entrepreneur many of us have that "can do anything" mentality, and while that may be true we can not do everything. Regardless of how great you may be at all the different aspects of your business, it is almost certain that there is someone out there better at a single part of it and to grow you need to find those people. Trying to grow a business while running it is a struggle many startups face, and as hard as it may be learning how to let go of the control to allow others the opportunity to fail is a must. Find people that are be

Daniel Moore

In 2008, at the age of 23, Daniel Moore bought his first investment property, and by the age of 28 became a full time real estate investor after being inducted into Robert Kiyosaki's Rich Dad Hall of Fame. With his involvement in the acquisition of millions of dollars in real estate, as well as the development of large new construction projects, Daniel has accumulated extensive first-hand, real world knowledge on the "how-to's" of real estate investing.
