July 25th 2016: Group and Team Coaching From the Inside

Join Host Lee Ann Wurster-Naeffe for a conversation with Holly Williams, author, coach, entrepreneur and member of the ITL faculty, as they explore the transformational nature of group and team coaching. Going behind the scenes of her book, Being Coached, Holly will share her thinking, wisdom and experience in working with groups of leaders across business, government and the non-profit sectors. You'll learn what group coaching is, how it works, and what it brings to leaders and organizations. Listeners will get a chance to come inside the stories of leaders who have had a group coaching exp

Holly Williams

Holly Williams is passionate about coaching leaders to make work a better place for everyone. Holly's background includes leadership in a Fortune 50 technology firm, as well as setting up business training programs for a Virginia community college, and business development for a technology firm. For 20 years, her company, MAGUS Group Coaching, has coached executives and groups in business and government. She earned her MBA at George Washington University, completed the Georgetown Institute for Transformational Leadership Coaching Program in 2006, and joined the faculty in 2011. Holly published Being Coached: Group and Team Coaching on the Inside, in 2016, and is just finishing her second
