August 31st 2016: Dons Solidaires Closes the Poverty Gap By Matching Surplus Goods to People in Need

8.6 million people live below the poverty line in France, yet 630 million euros of non-food goods are destroyed each year. Dons Solidaires works to ensure that these every day goods reach people in need, rather than going to waste. Listen to this episode of #SAPTalks with Bethan Aumonier as she explains how Don Solidaires uses technology to help achieve this goal.

Featured Guests

Bethan Aumonier

Bethan works for the French charity, Dons Solidaires. As Donor Relations manager she is responsible for encouraging manufacturers and distributors of non-food goods to donate, rather than destroy, their surplus stocks. Dons Solidaires receives product donations from well known companies and brands such as Procter & Gamble, Galeries Lafayette, L'Occitane, L'Oréal, Mattel and Disney – these products are then redistributed to people in need via a network of charities all over France. Prior to joining Dons Solidaires in 2009, firstly as a volunteer, Bethan spent over ten years in the food ingredients industry with the Irish based Kerry Group – various sales and key account management roles in
