The Career Confidante
Monday at 3 PM Pacific
January 30th 2017:Encore: How to Resign from Your Job Without Burning Bridges

When you resign from your job, it's important to resign as gracefully and professionally as possible. We know that career advancement can mean moving out to move up, so you will need to maintain your network of former employers and colleagues for your long-term career success. In other words, you can't afford to burn bridges when you resign. In this episode of the Career Confidante, host Marie Zimenoff will welcome Stacy Harshman to discuss how to prepare to leave your job, write a resignation letter, and much more!

Stacy Harshman

Stacy Harshman is a career management coach who specializes in helping people transition into more fulfilling careers. Having worked as a recruiter for 10 years, Stacy knows the vast majority of people have no idea of what direction to take their careers and few, understand what fulfills them. Stacy's passion is to guide individuals through a process of self-discovery to determine their life's purpose and a vision to live out that purpose of doing meaningful work. Stacy became a coach after going through the process herself with her own coach. Stacy has her master's degree in Management from Colorado State University, a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration from Northwest Nazarene
