March 28th 2017: Pressure on Politicians from The Public and Corporations

With the advent of social media, public pressure can influence politicians decisions like never before. North Carolina's "bathroom bill", the law limiting LGBT protections will cost the state an absolute minimum of $5 billion in lost business over ten or so years. This loss of business in the state is solely a result of the public being mobilized through social media; Amazon's terms and conditions for the Kindle is 320 pages long and 73,000 words long. If you read the terms and conditions for Amazon's Kindle out loud it will take you 9 hours if you don't take a break. How fucking ridicu

Featured Guest

Dr. Mark Goulston

Dr. Mark Goulston is widely regarded as a "People Hacker." He started out as a crisis psychiatrist specializing in suicide intervention, then a death and dying expert doing house calls to dying founders/CEO's and their families, then an FBI/police hostage negotiation trainer, then advisor to attorneys in high profile trials (i.e O.J. Simpson criminal trial) and currently serves as a confidante and advisor to entrepreneurs, founders and CEO's who helps them see into their futures. In this presentation... no, in this performance, Dr. Mark Goulston will not play, but will be Steve Jobs coming back from the grave to describe his return to Apple in 1997 through the release of the iPhone in 20
